HESA e-Learning Terms and Conditions

HESA e-Learning completes a fully blended approach for learning. The courses have been specifically designed to ensure continued underpinning knowledge of the Highway Electrical Sector workforce.

The e-Learning Courses will require an end of course learning theory assessment with an achievement pass of 100%. Where, after 3 attempts, the course has not been achieved, a full face to face course will be required.

Please see the e-Learning Training Specification document for further information. The designated e-Learning courses (see appendix 1 of the Training Specification) does not replace the initial full course, (see specific criteria), which has been delivered by face-to-face training or by remote training.

It is the responsibility of the employer organisation to monitor the progress of their employee during the e-Learning period, it is also the responsibility of the employer to confirm with the employee that they have successfully completed and passed the course. The HESA e-Learning will only notify the employee if they have not been successful.

e-Learning specific criteria
